ACM History

The Africa Centre for Missions (ACM) was established in Nairobi, Kenya in February 2000 by a coalition of Kenyan churches and organizations (Finish the Task) who desired to see a centre established which would train and equip the African church for its role in world missions.

Over a period of years, ACM trained several Kenyan missionaries who now serve among various of the least-reached people groups of Kenya. After some years, it was seen that no training existed for training experienced missionaries to a higher level of effectiveness; training trainers for all the other school of missions; or training church leaders in the area of mission leadership.

After much preparation, the ACM launched its new BA mission programs in August 2010.

Bachelor Degree's Program Descriptions

Strategic Missions

This program is for Experienced Missionaries and combines various methods of training in order to expand the breadth and depth of their impact amongst the unreached. Missionaries in this program will be highly equipped through the practical aspects of this program combined with the teaching of experts in areas of bible, missions, leadership, community development, project management and other essential areas of frontier work.

This program specifically targets Experienced Missionaries who:

- Have already been trained up to a diploma level.
- Are currently serving among an unreached people group.
- Are looking to complete a two year program
- Are able to travel to Nairobi 3 times a year for 3-week intensives.
- Are able to do course work in between sessions via distance education.

Mission Leadership

This program is specifically designed for those in Mission Leadership in their church, denomination, or organization. Through completion of this program, leaders in mission efforts will effectively learn how to mobilize a church, establish sending structures, develop mission strategies, provide oversight for field missionaries and develop other competencies necessary for leading mission work in this day and age.

This program targets those in Mission Leadership who:

- Have already been trained at a diploma level.
- Are part of leadership of a missionary sending program.
- Are able to attend one week intensive course during each month, and two weeks in a holiday month.

ACM COURSES ONLINE

Through our partnership with Bethany International, our students can log onto the online facility to get there next course syllabus , assignments, etc and even interact with lecturers and fellow students. Details of this facility is available to the students only. Further partnership for online M.a. degrees are in the hoofing.

Inter-Cultural Education

This program is specifically designed to equip those called to be Missionary Trainers. Through completion of this program, the graduate will be able to understand cultural issues on the mission field, develop mission strategy, develop and implement informal, non-formal, and formal mission training methodologies, carry administrative responsibilities and be effective in other crucial areas needed in the running of a training program.

This program target Missionary Trainerss:

- Those interested in learning how to train missionaries for reaching the unreached.
- Have already been trained up to a diploma level.
- Are able to attend one week intensive course during each month, and two weeks in a holiday month.
